Dear Friend,

Thank you for your faithful support of The Navigators. Years of disciplemaking have multiplied the impact of transformed lives.

Navigators Collegiate ministry at Bowie State University can trace generations of disciples back to pioneering work at Howard University by Eugene Burrell, who died in 2021. Eugene's legacy lives on in the lives of disciplemakers who faithfully serve students.

Daniel had always been an athlete and found his identity in his success in track. After he struggled with an injury at Bowie State, he made some poor choices. He shares, "I was caught shoplifting and it hit me how far I had drifted. I realized I needed to seek after God. I had been raised in a Christian home but had focused on sports rather than God. I started attending a Navigators Bible study, and the leader became a mentor, friend, and discipler." Having grown in his faith and become an avid disciplemaker, Daniel is now on staff with The Navigators. He is excited to see students mature in their faith and take what they learn in college about disciplemaking into their careers and daily lives.

The next generation is growing as disciples because of the legacy of faithful followers of Jesus who went before them on college campuses. Your gifts provide support for equipping generations of disciplemakers!

Gratefully,

Andrew Ginsberg
