Dear Tom and Chad,

Did you feel the change in the air? We have officially entered sniffle season. Maybe you've seen the side eye after a little cough in the grocery store, or maybe you've given one. The season is changing and sometimes it is hard to tell in what direction. One day you're wearing shorts, the next you're regretting putting away that winter coat.

The weather may be a little uncertain, but your support is one thing I know I can count on! I am so grateful for your warm donation to those in need. Your ongoing care is a consistent reminder of brighter days to come. The generosity of your gift shines through to our clients and with your steady support they know they have something to rely on.

This season while you focus on not spreading germs, remember it is okay to still spread a little love. Thank you again for your careful care as you wash your hands, cover your coughs, and most importantly, open your hearts. Remember, thanks to you we can feed thousands of food insecure folks right here in our community!

Sincerely,

Carmen Cumberland
